From The Mayor By Dan Tafel

Celebrating America at 250: Freedom Begins at Home

This Independence Day is especially meaningful as our nation celebrates its 250th birthday. For two and a half centuries, Americans have enjoyed freedoms secured through the courage, sacrifice, and vision of our Founding Fathers. As we gather for the Rolling Fields Fourth of July Parade, we celebrate not only our nation's history, but also the community spirit that makes Rolling Fields special.

The Founders understood that strong local government is essential to a free society. Thomas Jefferson wrote that local governments are the "true guardians of our liberties," while James Madison emphasized the important role of state and local communities in our system of government.

Those principles remain alive in Rolling Fields today. What sets our city apart is the extraordinary level of civic involvement. Our residents volunteer countless hours serving on committees, improving our park, preserving our neighborhoods, enhancing infrastructure, organizing events, and strengthening our sense of community. Unlike many cities that struggle with participation, Rolling Fields benefits from neighbors who are actively engaged in making our community better.

As we celebrate America's 250th birthday, it is fitting to recognize the generations of leaders who have helped make Rolling Fields the community we enjoy today. Special thanks to former mayors, including Sox McMakin, Charles Stoll, Tinsley Campbell, John Everett, Susan Stokes, Weta Mapother, Albert Leggett, Wayne Wells, Bill Conway, and David Dunn. Their dedication, along with the service of countless Commissioners and volunteers, has preserved the character and sense of community that define Rolling Fields.

The success of Rolling Fields is a reminder that our democratic republic works best when citizens get involved. Whether attending a Commission meeting, serving on a committee, volunteering at an event, or helping a neighbor, every contribution matters.

As you celebrate Independence Day, I encourage you to fly your American flag, enjoy our city's traditions, and consider how you can help shape the future of Rolling Fields.

Happy Independence Day and Happy 250th Birthday, America!

Planning a Home Improvement Project?, by Weston Adams

Before beginning many exterior home improvement projects, Rolling Fields homeowners are required to obtain a city permit. The permit process helps ensure projects comply with city ordinances while preserving the character and beauty of our community.

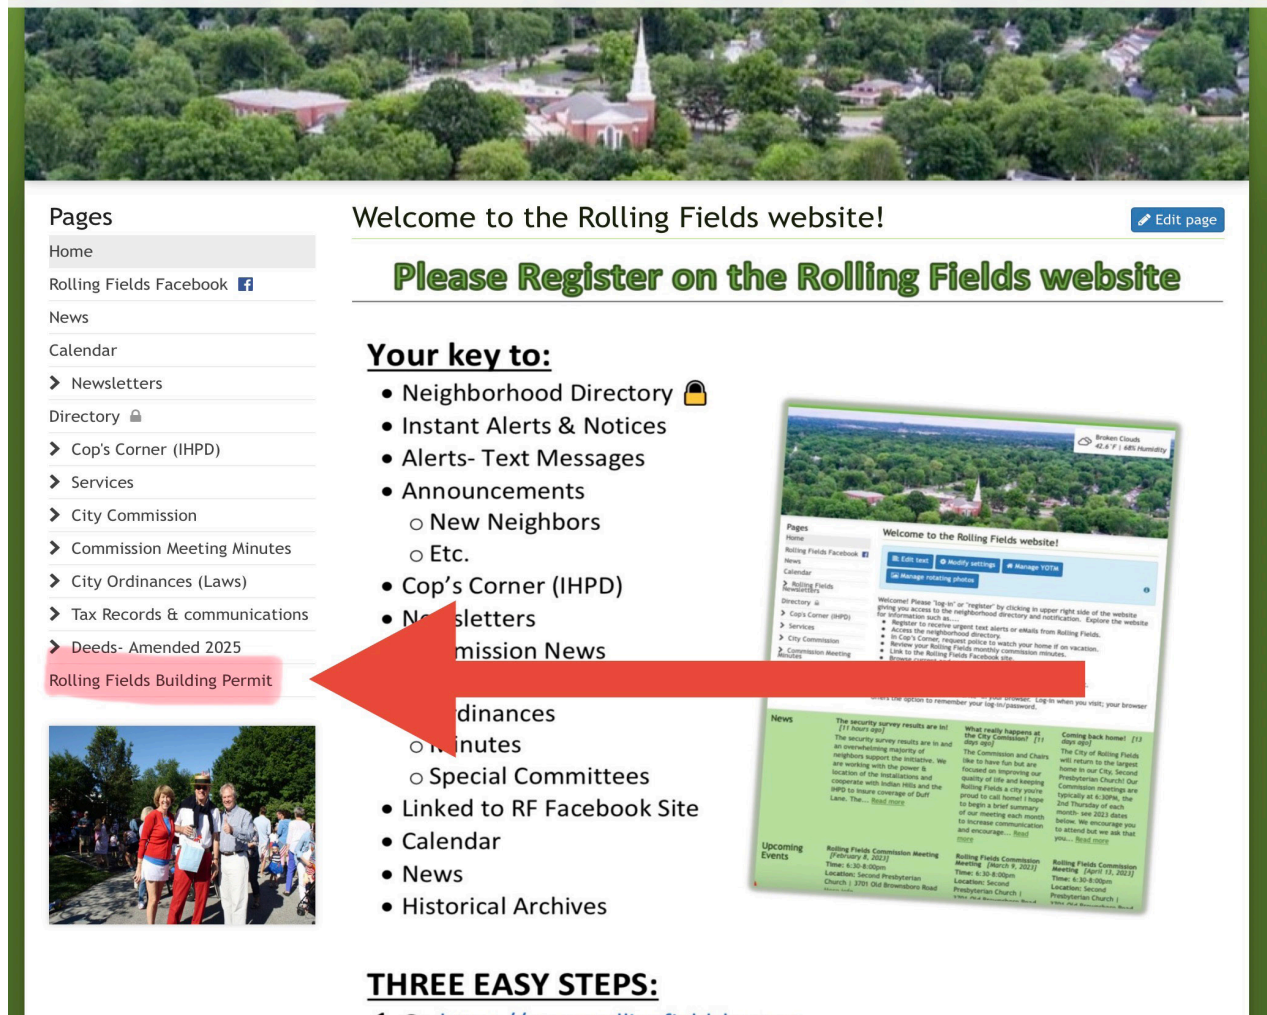

A Rolling Fields permit is required for:

- Building, additions, and remodeling — $150
- Solar panel installations — $150
- New roofs — $50
- New driveways, parking areas, and circular drives — $150
- Dumpsters and portable storage containers — $50 per month
- Excavation using heavy equipment — $150
- Fences and walls — $50
- Swimming pools — $150
- Variances — $150

Please note that interior renovations do not require a Rolling Fields permit.

Getting started is easy. Simply visit the Rolling Fields website using the link illustrated on this page and follow the online permit application process. The website provides convenient access to permit applications, city ordinances, commission information, and other important resources for residents.

If you have questions about whether your project requires a permit, please contact Harvey Willis, whose contact information can be found on the back page of this newsletter. Obtaining permits before work begins helps avoid delays, ensures compliance with city requirements, and protects your investment.

Welcome New Neighbors

Alex and Gretchen Foskett - 504 Country Lane

Please welcome Alex and Gretchen! Alex was born & raised in Manassas, VA. He attended the US Naval Academy where he played varsity soccer. He then served 5 years as a naval submarine officer after graduating from USNA. He is in the midst of an exciting career pivot - training to become a commercial airline pilot.

Gretchen was born in Tennessee but moved several times in childhood & enjoyed the wonderful opportunity to live in Belgium with her family for 6 years through middle and high school. She went to Vanderbilt for undergraduate education. She's a physician (medical geneticist), but hasn't practiced the last several years to enjoy extra time with get children while they are young.

They have two children - Grayson (6) and Hadley (4). They love exploring the local creeks around Louisville & making mud potions in the yard at home. They also have a very friendly Frenchie named Winston. Gretchen said, "We were delighted to discover Rolling Fields through friends that live in the neighborhood. It's such a beautiful, charming neighborhood in a great location filled with lots of wonderful families!"

David and Beth Scinta - 3723 Fairway Lane

Please welcome David and Beth! David was born in Buffalo, New York and moved to Louisville when he was three years old. He attended Trinity High School and the University of Kentucky. Beth was born and raised in Knoxville, Tennessee and attended Transylvania University.

Now retired, Beth and David have been married for 35 years and are proud parents of three children. Their oldest son, Blake (32), and his wife, Kary, are raising two young children, James (5) and Claire (3). Their middle son, Clay (30), and his wife, Ali, share their home with two dogs, Tex and Bear. Their youngest, Elizabeth (26), is single and lives with her middle school best friend.

As a family, the Scintas enjoy spending time together watching sports, especially cheering on the University of Kentucky. Of course, they're horse racing fans as well. You can also find them golfing, swimming, and playing tennis at Louisville Country Club.

Beth and David's dream was always to live on the golf course. When Mrs. Brewer's house became available, it was a dream come true for the Scintas. They look forward to making new memories here—hosting family dinners and enjoying this next chapter while watching their children and grandchildren grow.

Spotlight on Basswood, by Clare Simpson

Basswood Lane runs west from Club Lane to Swing Lane, serving as a peaceful gateway toward Mockingbird Valley and the Ohio River. While it eventually passes into the City of Louisville toward Lightfoot Road, its heart remains firmly in Rolling Fields. The street is famously flat, making it a “hidden gem” for residents who enjoy a morning jog, a sunset stroll, or a safe place for children to master their bicycles.

The layout of the street is a bit of an architectural puzzle. There are seven houses in total—four on the north side and three on the south. This means the south-side lots are roughly one-third larger than their neighbors across the street! Local legend says this was due to a survey discrepancy decades ago. In fact, when 3604 Basswood was purchased years back, a survey revealed the deed actually included the driveway and most of the three-car garage of 3606 next door! In true Rolling Fields fashion, the neighbors settled the “land dispute” over a friendly handshake and revised deeds.

As for the name? You won’t find many Basswood trees here. But as long-time residents point out, there’s no club on Club Lane and no canoes on Canoe Lane—the names are simply “fanciful and charming.”

Most of these homes were built between 1948 and 1949. Over the years, the “Basswood Seven” have evolved. While five homes have been painted in unique, stylish hues, two remain in their classic original brick. Inside, every single home has seen a kitchen remodel, and many of the original screened porches have been transformed into sunrooms or home offices. A few vintage touches remain: 3604 still features a detached guest quarters/art studio, a “grandfathered” arrangement that harkens back to an era of live-in household help.

What truly defines Basswood Lane is the eclectic mix of people behind the front doors. The current “Basswood Seven” are a diverse tapestry of professionals, with interests spanning interior design, law, and art, with a couple of foreign car aficionados sprinkled in.

It also appears from the illustrated advertisement in the October 8, 1961 edition of The Courier-Journal, that values of homes on Basswood Lane have increased!

Sponsor today, preserve a legacy, by Dan Tafel

The City of Rolling Fields is proud to announce the upcoming publication of Rolling Fields Then & Now, a beautifully illustrated history of our community authored by local resident Barker Price and edited by John Clark.

Drawing upon years of research, historical records, photographs, and personal recollections, the book provides a remarkable account of the people, places, and events that shaped Rolling Fields. It is a unique story that traces of our city from its earliest beginnings to the vibrant community we know today.

Readers will discover fascinating stories about the land, the farms and estates that once occupied it, the development of the neighborhood in the 1940s, and the residents whose lives and contributions helped shape our community over the past eight decades.

Filled with historic and contemporary photographs, personal recollections, and stories gathered from longtime residents and local archives, Rolling Fields Then & Now preserves a piece of our city's heritage that might otherwise be lost to time. Designed to be both an engaging historical resource and a beautiful coffee table book, it is a tribute to the families, traditions, and sense of community that have made Rolling Fields one of Louisville's most treasured neighborhoods.

To help bring this important project to life, the City is offering a limited number of sponsorship opportunities to support the preservation of Rolling Fields history for future generations:

Founder's Circle Sponsors (3) —
$2,000 (Only two spots)
Full-page recognition in the book

Half-page recognition in the book

Legacy Family Sponsor — $100
We invite current and former families to join Dedicated page listing current and former families with your name (prior) address, and years in Rolling Fields.

Every sponsor will help ensure that the stories, photographs, and memories of Rolling Fields are preserved for generations to come.

This book will become part of the permanent historical record of Rolling Fields and will be enjoyed by residents, families, and future generations for years to come.

Sponsorship opportunities are limited and will be offered on a first-come, first-served basis. If you would like to become a sponsor and help preserve the story of Rolling Fields, please contact Mayor Danny Tafel or City Hall for additional information.

Wildlife

One of the many things that makes Rolling Fields special is the abundance of wildlife that shares our community. Our mature tree canopy, nearby creeks, and wooded landscapes provide habitat for white-tailed deer, foxes, wild turkeys, hawks, falcons, owls, and unfortunately, raccoons and skunks.

Late spring and early summer are especially active. White-tailed deer often give birth to fawns in quiet corners of our yards. It is normal for a doe to leave her fawn alone by your home while she forages nearby, so what appears to be an abandoned fawn usually is not. Unless a fawn is clearly injured or in immediate danger, the best approach is to admire it from a distance and let nature take its course.

Does are also very protective of their young and may charge if they feel a fawn is threatened. Dogs are especially vulnerable because they are viewed as predators. A recent incident in the Tafels yard on Fairway Lane, where a doe attacked a dog, is a reminder to that a momma deer can harm to a dog.

Wildlife also faces dangers in our neighborhood. Earlier this year, a mature buck became impaled while attempting to jump a fence along Tiffany Lane. Nature can also be difficult to witness. Coyotes, now common throughout our area, hunt to feed their pups, and young fawns sometimes become part of that natural cycle. Residents may occasionally find deer remains in yards or along our streets—a sobering reminder of the circle of life in a healthy thinning of the herd.

We are also home to several fox families, including an active den near Edmond Lane and Second Presbyterian Church. Wild turkeys continue to roam the neighborhood, while residents have reported nesting Red-shouldered Hawks and Peregrine Falcons hunting overhead.

The abundance of wildlife in Rolling Fields reflects the health of our trees, green spaces, and natural environment. As we enjoy our neighborhood this summer, remember that we are not the only ones who call Rolling Fields home. By respecting wildlife, supervising our pets, securing trash and giving wild animals the space they need, we help preserve one of the qualities that makes our city so special. After all, we don't simply live alongside nature—we share our city and our yards with it.

Every photograph on these pages was taken this spring and summer in and around Rolling Fields. Together, they capture just a small sample of the remarkable wildlife that shares our community.

Cop's Corner, by Chief Kelly Spratt

Rolling Fields continues to be one of the safest communities in Jefferson County. Through the first five months of 2026, we have had no reported residential burglaries, vehicle thefts, or thefts from vehicles within the City. That is a testament to both proactive policing, security cameras and the vigilance of our residents.

While serious crime remains low, safety concerns still exist. Our officers have responded to several accidents caused by inattentive/distracted parties and are aware of numerous close calls involving pedestrians, motorists, bicyclists, and electronic scooters. Fortunately, most of these incidents have not resulted in serious injury, but they serve as reminders that accidents can happen quickly.

One area of particular concern is the operation of electronic scooters and similar vehicles by younger riders. Excessive speed, failure to stop at intersections, and distracted riding can create dangerous situations for both riders and motorists. I have been working with several parents to address these concerns and identify practical ways to reduce the risk of accidents before a tragedy occurs.

I encourage all residents to remain attentive, follow traffic laws, and discuss safe riding habits with their children. Parents should periodically review speed settings and ensure that young riders understand the responsibilities that come with operating any vehicle on or near our roadways.

Our goal is not simply to prevent crime, but to prevent injuries and keep Rolling Fields a safe place for families to live, walk, bike, and play. Thank you for your continued partnership in helping us achieve that goal.

PLEASE....., In Memory of Mayor Conway

Former Mayor Bill Conway introduced the popular “PLEASE” page many years ago, and several residents have recently suggested bringing it back. Most of these reminders reflect City ordinances and may be enforced, while others are simply common courtesies that help keep Rolling Fields beautiful, safe, and enjoyable for everyone.

We'll periodically share a few friendly reminders, beginning with our Top 10 List:

- 1. Please pick up and properly dispose of dog waste bags. Leaving bags along the curb, even temporarily, creates an eyesore for neighbors
- 2. Please store trash and recycling containers out of view from the street when not awaiting collection.
- 3. Please check your child's electronic scooter. We recommend children's electronic bikes scooters are limited to a maximum speed of 15-20 mph.
- 4. Please encourage children to dispose of litter properly, including candy wrappers and other packaging after going to Walgreens.
- 5. Please place trash and recycling containers out no earlier than the evening before collection and retrieve them promptly after pickup.
- 6. Please do not attach signs to street signs or sign poles. Tape and fasteners can damage paint, reflective coatings, and city property.
- 7. Please report potential ordinance violations by emailing violations@rollingfieldsky.com rather than texting Commissioners.
- 8. Please avoid routine overnight parking on city streets. Streets are not intended for regular overnight vehicle storage.
- 9. Please contact the City before beginning any home improvement, maintenance, any other project that requires a dumpster. Most projects require permits from both Jefferson County and the City of Rolling Fields. Email permits@rollingfieldsky.com or visit the City website at the onset of planning. We will gladly answer questions and typically respond within 48 hours.
- 10. Please maintain your home's exterior woodwork and shutters. To prevent rot, deterioration, and fading, painting is generally recommended every 5–7 years.

Thank you for helping keep Rolling Fields one of Louisville's most beautiful and welcoming communities.

Cleaning Up Roadside Clutter

If you've driven around Louisville recently, you've likely seen temporary signs advertising everything from political campaigns to home services. Many are illegally placed in public rights-of-way, creating visual clutter, blocking sightlines, and increasing cleanup costs for local governments.

To address the issue, Rolling Fields Mayor Dan Tafel worked with Louisville Metro Councilman Scott Reed to initiate legislation aimed at improving enforcement. The measure was later supported by the Jefferson County League of Cities (JCLC), which represents more than 80 cities across Jefferson County. Mayor Tafel serves on the League's Executive Committee.

The ordinance, which recently passed the Louisville Metro Council, changes illegal sign placement from a criminal offense to a civil violation, allowing Code Enforcement to issue fines directly to the business or organization advertised on the sign. Penalties will increase to $250–$500 per violation, and Louisville Metro plans an educational campaign before enforcement begins.

The goal is simple: safer intersections, cleaner roadways, and more attractive communities throughout Jefferson County.

Revisiting Brownsboro Road Right-Sizing

Nearly two years ago, KYTC completed the "right-sizing" of Brownsboro Road despite significant opposition from residents, businesses, and local officials. The project was intended to improve safety and calm traffic along the corridor.

At the time, Kentucky Transportation Secretary Jim Gray stated that the project was "just pavement and paint" and that if it didn't work, "we will make it right."

In April 2025, leaders from Rolling Fields and Mockingbird Valley met with KYTC officials to review early results. KYTC advised that at least one year—and preferably two years—of post-project data would be needed before drawing conclusions.

Today, with approximately four months remaining before reaching the two-year mark, accident counts have already exceeded pre-project levels. As a result, Rolling Fields and Mockingbird Valley are working with community leaders to update traffic and accident studies and determine whether the corridor should be reevaluated once the full data set is available.

We look forward to sharing additional information as the analysis progresses.

"Residents packed a public meeting at St. Joseph Children's Home in 2023 to discuss the proposed Brownsboro Road right-sizing project. Local officials are now reviewing nearly two years of accident data to evaluate its effectiveness."

Rolling Fields Adopts Balanced 2026–2027 Budget

At its June meeting, the Rolling Fields City Commission adopted a balanced budget for the fiscal year beginning July 1, 2026. The budget reflects the City's commitment to maintaining exceptional services, preserving property values, and carefully managing taxpayer resources.

Where Your Tax Dollars Go

Public Safety — 48%

Police protection and neighborhood security remain the City's highest priority and largest investment.

Sanitation Services — 20%

Weekly waste collection and related sanitation services continue to be essential services for residents.

Administration & City Operations — 10%

Tax billing, accounting, audits, legal compliance, and day-to-day city administration.

Park Bond Payments — 9%

Annual payments on the bond issued to finance improvements to the City's park and community amenities.

Road & Drainage Support — 6%

Funding transferred from the General Fund to supplement street maintenance, drainage improvements, and snow removal. This funding is in addition to the annual state road aid (gas tax) revenues that are deposited directly into the City's Road Fund.

Community Events & Communications — 5% Neighborhood events, newsletters, public notices, and resident communications.

Parks, Trees & Beautification — 2%

Maintenance of city green spaces, landscaping, and tree care programs.

The City's General Fund budget totals approximately $494,000 and is balanced without the use of reserves. Nearly half of all City expenditures are dedicated to public safety, while significant resources continue to support sanitation services, infrastructure, parks, and resident communications. In addition, the City supplements its dedicated Road Fund with General Fund dollars to ensure continued investment in road maintenance and drainage improvements.

The Commission remains committed to investing in the services that matter most while preserving the beauty, safety, and character that make Rolling Fields such a special place to call home. The full detail of all income and expenses are available on the City's website.

Movie Night in the Park Returns

Movie Night in the Park Returns This August!

There's something special about watching a movie under the stars with friends and neighbors. This summer, families from across Rolling Fields gathered in the park with blankets, lawn chairs, and picnic dinners to enjoy a community movie night featuring The Goonies. From the Boo Boo Smoke Shack food truck to children playing before the movie began, it was an evening filled with laughter, conversation, and the simple joy of spending time together.

Events like Movie Night are more than just entertainment—they're opportunities to meet new neighbors, reconnect with old friends, and create memories our children will cherish for years to come.

Seeing families spread across the lawn as the sun set and the movie began was a wonderful reminder of what makes Rolling Fields such a close-knit community.

If you missed the fun, don't worry! The Social Committee is planning another Movie Night in the Park this August. Watch for details on the date, featured movie, and food truck. Bring your favorite blanket or lawn chair, invite your neighbors, and join us for another memorable evening under the stars.

A special thank you to the Rolling Fields Social Committee and all of the volunteers who helped make this event such a success. We look forward to seeing everyone again in August!

Show your seal!

Have you placed a Rolling Fields vehicle seal on your car?

More than just a sticker, the Rolling Fields seal helps the Indian Hills Police Department identify vehicles that belong in our community. It supports public safety efforts, assists officers responding to suspicious activity, and helps distinguish resident vehicles from those that may not belong in the neighborhood.

Obtaining a vehicle seal is easy and free for residents. Simply email Weston Adams (Wadams@LBC1879.com) and provide:

- Your name
- Home address
- Number of seals needed

For maximum visibility, the seal should be placed on the driver's side of the rear window.

Whether you're a longtime resident, have recently moved to Rolling Fields, or purchased a new vehicle, we encourage you to display the Rolling Fields seal. It's a simple way to support public safety while showing pride in the community we are fortunate to call home.

The Weekend Gardener, by Dr. John Hubbard

“In the world of big-tree hunting, this cluster is a phenomenal and practically an unheard-of find!”

National Champion Tree Registry, about the Champion trees in Rolling Fields

One of the many pleasures of gardening and living in Rolling Fields is being surrounded by an extraordinary tree canopy. Recently, I shared information about three Kentucky Co-Champion Trees located within approximately 0.3 miles of one another in our neighborhood— Swamp White Oaks, A Black Walnut, and a Red Maple—and asked for feedback from the National Champion Tree Registry which has been keeping records since 1940.

Their response was fascinating.

According to The Registry, tree programs do not officially track or rank “proximity achievements” or “density of champions.” There is no formal record category for having multiple champion trees clustered together. However, they noted that “in the world of big-tree hunting, this cluster is a phenomenal and practically a unheard-of find.”

The Registry explained that finding three champion-caliber trees of different species so close together points to what they described as a “perfect microclimate” phenomenon. The combination of rich soils, favorable drainage, protection from development, and decades—if not centuries—of careful stewardship has allowed these trees to thrive. Many champion trees survive for 150 to 250 years or more, making them living links to the earliest days of our community.

The National Champion Tree Registry further noted that neighborhoods with this kind of concentration are often referred to as “Big Tree Hotspots.” Similar clusters are typically found in historic estates, arboretums, or celebrated landscapes. To find one within a residential neighborhood is exceptionally rare.

While there may never be an official trophy for champion-tree proximity, Rolling Fields has earned something just as meaningful: the distinction of being home to one of Kentucky’s most remarkable collections of mature trees.

As gardeners and homeowners, we are fortunate to be stewards of this living legacy. Every effort to preserve, protect, and plant trees helps ensure that future generations will enjoy the same beauty and environmental benefits that make Rolling Fields such a special place to call home.

The next time you take a walk through the neighborhood, look up. You may be standing beneath one of Kentucky’s largest trees—and part of what the Champion Tree Registry describes as a truly extraordinary and practically unheard-of concentration of champion trees.

“This cluster (of trees) is phenomenal and practically unheard-of find” said the director for National Champion Tree Registry.
